

Ledgerly Inc. — Meals & Entertainment Expense Policy

Effective 2026-01-01 · Finance Department · Applies to all employees

1. Daily meal caps while traveling

Employees traveling overnight for business may expense meals up to 500 TRY per day, split across breakfast, lunch, and dinner. Alcohol is excluded from this cap and is reimbursable only when entertaining a client, up to two drinks per person.

Meals taken alone while working late at the home office are not reimbursable; the meal cap applies exclusively to overnight business travel or client entertainment.

2. Client entertainment

Client meals and entertainment require the names and companies of all attendees to be recorded in the expense notes. Entertainment spend without attendee information will be routed to manual review.

A single client entertainment expense exceeding 3000 TRY requires prior approval from the requesting employee's director.

3. Team meals and office snacks

Team lunches celebrating a project milestone are reimbursable up to 400 TRY per person, limited to once per quarter per team, and must be booked under the team lead's expense account rather than an individual's.

Office snacks and coffee purchased for shared kitchen areas are reimbursable when submitted by an office manager and are capped at 2000 TRY per office per month.

4. What is never reimbursable

Meals for an employee's spouse, family, or friends are never reimbursable, even when the employee is traveling on business.

Grocery purchases and meal-kit subscriptions are considered personal expenses and will be rejected outright.
